

Nunavut
Electoral Boundaries
Commission

Invitation for Public Submissions

Every 10 years the Nunavut Legislative Assembly is required to create an independent and impartial Electoral Boundaries Commission to review the existing electoral constituencies and determine if they provide Nunavummiut with effective representation in the legislature. Currently there are 22 constituencies in the territory.

The Commission considers aspects like the geography, how population distribution might change, community interests, Inuit Qaujimajatuqangit, and other relevant factors, as stated in the Terms of Reference provided by the Nunavut Legislative Assembly to recommend if changes need to be made to constituencies for future territorial elections.

Submissions will be accepted until April 14, 2023.

All submissions to the Commission shall be considered public documents and must be published in the final report, including the name of the person making the submission.

Members of the public are encouraged to send written submissions to the Commission:
